FROM THE DIRECTOR

The lives of the Royal Family of the House of Windsor are all too familiar to us. Many of us remember the divorce of Charles and Diana, and the tragic circumstances surrounding her death. The marriage of William and Kate and the births of their children have kept our attention over the years, and the recent wedding of Harry and Megan caused another surge in the celebrity of the royal family. And Camilla, a once disparaged outsider, now walks alongside Charles as his wife and member of the royal family.

All this is history.

But this evening, on stage, we will look forward in time to the near future of the British monarchy and witness a scenario, with the above cast of characters, that has yet to unfold. Bartlett has fashioned an ingenious play, in the mold of Shakespeare's history plays, that follows Charles, the new king, in search of his new self—his monarch's voice—as he wends his way through the various crises that have beset the nation. While testing the limitations of the constitutional monarchy, Charles enters the political process—stepping too far from the throne—and presses issues that, in the end, threaten the future of the monarchy. This is the stuff of the play.

Bartlett's King Charles III is a study in kingship not unlike the history plays of William Shakespeare. In them, Shakespeare considers what is required of a man to become a true king. The answer is, of course, as complicated as the men who sit upon the thrones. In this "future history play," Charles earnestly strives to be the best king possible. His intentions are noble but flawed, and his actions are principled but not always wise. Had he had the benefit of Prince William's musings, his future may have been otherwise:

...in the years before
My grandmother did pass away...
She told me that temptation lies as royal
To act, and speak, and lead, and always move,
When actually the greatest influence
That we can wield is through our standing still
Not rash, and never changing, a great crown
Is made by dint of always being there.

(William, King Charles III)

THE WILD WINDSORS

CHARLES, PRINCE OF WALES, DUKE OF CORNWALL

(born November 14, 1948), is the oldest child of Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh. Charles was primarily educated at prestigious schools with other wealthy boys. After secondary school, he attended Cambridge University and spent a term at University College of Wales to learn Welsh. Charles is the first heir apparent to earn a university degree, and also the first Prince of Wales who attempted to learn the Welsh language. After university, Charles completed his military service (as is tradition for the royals) in the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy.

Charles, however, has not been Britain's favorite prince. Even The Prince's Trust was seen by some as him criticizing the way the British government was handling its social problems in the late '70s. Since then, his media image hasn't improved much, and he has admitted to being uncomfortable in the spotlight. "[I'm] not very good at being a performing monkey," he once said.

He next gained a reputation as a heartless heartbreaker, which he acquired after spurning the much-loved Princess Diana in the early '90s

CAMILLA, DUCHESS OF CORNWALL

(formally Camilla Parker Bowles, née Camilla Shand; born July 17, 1947), met Prince Charles on a polo field in 1972. They were attracted to each other, but Camilla married another man in 1973, and Charles married Diana Spencer in 1981. Yet the two never really stopped seeing each other. In 1993, the tabloids published transcripts of an intimate phone conversation Camilla had with Charles, leading to the breakups of their respective marriages. The British people saw Camilla as the "other woman" who had ruined Diana's life. In spite of the negative press, she and Charles continued their relationship, and they were married at a modest wedding in 2004.

LADY DIANA SPENCER

(formerly Princess of Wales; born July 1, 1961; died August 31, 1997) got engaged to Prince Charles in 1981 and they married later that year, but both parties quickly involved themselves in extramarital affairs. Despite her troubled marriage, charming Diana became one of the public's favorite members of the royal family. She was so well-liked that she was seen as the wronged party in the hearts and minds of Britons when the Camillagate scandal broke. Tragically, about a year after she and Charles officially finalized their divorce, Diana was killed in a car accident. The driver of the car lost control while speeding away from paparazzi.

QUEEN ELIZABETH II

(born April 21, 1926) is Britain's longest reigning queen; she has been ruling steadily for 64 years. Her popularity among the British people, however, has not been so steady. It hit rock bottom in 1992, which she has called her annus horribilis (Latin for "horrible year"): three of her four children went through breakups; eggs were thrown at her when she visited Germany; and Windsor Castle suffered a terrible fire. But public opinion of the royal family began to climb after the marriage of her grandson William to Kate Middleton in 2011. With the public image of the royal family improved at last, the queen's 2012 Diamond Jubilee, celebrating 60 years on the throne, was an enormous success.

PRINCE WILLIAM, DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE

(born June 21, 1982), is the first child of Charles and Diana. At his mother's insistence, he and his younger brother, Harry, had a "normal" upbringing—they went to Disneyland and ate at McDonald's. William studied for his degree at the University of St. Andrews, where he met his future wife, Kate Middleton. The two were married in 2011 in an extravagant wedding ceremony. William's popularity rating is much higher than his father's, and according to the Daily Beast, 40 percent of Brits think that, when Queen Elizabeth dies, Charles should abdicate and let William become king.

CATHERINE, DUCHESS OF CAMBRIDGE

(née Catherine Middleton; born January 9, 1982), also known as Kate, met Prince William while at university. In the beginning of their relationship, William did his best to shield Kate from nosy reporters. After their engagement, however, there was little he could do to protect her from the media, which initially labeled her a "commoner." But eventually, Kate's beauty and charm won over the public. Their 2011 wedding was one for the ages, and as soon as she was in the public eye, Kate became a style icon. But she's not just known for her fashion sense; people also love her for her charity work and her grounded personality.

PRINCE HARRY

(born September 15, 1984) has been seen by the media as something of an embarrassment to the royal family. As a young adult, he was photographed smoking marijuana, and in 2005 a picture was snapped of him dressed as a Nazi for a costume party. In addition to these PR gaffes, the media has cast him as a playboy due to his proclivity for raucous parties, heavy drinking with his mates, and rich, leggy, blonde girlfriends. As he has matured, however, his focus has shifted from partying to emulating the humanitarianism of his mother, Diana. In 2014, he founded the Invictus Games — a major sporting competition for military personnel who have suffered life-changing injuries.

This article by Shannon Stockwell and Allie Moss first appeared in American Conservatory Theater's performance program for its 2016 production of King Charles III.

2018/2019 Corporate, Foundation & Grant Profiles

The Roy Cockrum Foundation, founded by Knoxville native Roy Cockrum in 2014 with proceeds from a Tennessee Powerball jackpot, pursues the following mission: "to award grants to support world-class performing arts projects in not-for-profit professional theaters throughout the United States of America." Also guiding the Foundation is its motto adopted from Albert Camus: "Without culture, and the relative freedom it implies, society, even when perfect, is but a jungle. This is why any authentic creation is a gift to the future."

Schaad Companies is a privately held real estate company owned by members of the John H. Schaad, Jr. family. Immigrating to East Tennessee from Switzerland in the late 1800's, the Schaads have been part of the Knoxville business community for more than a century and have embraced innovation as a means of sustaining their businesses. Since 2007, Schaad Companies has been an enthusiastic and loyal supporter of Clarence Brown Theatre's Mainstage productions. Schaad Companies believes the arts fuel creativity, stir the imagination, spur innovation, and move the world forward. The Clarence Brown Theatre offers the kind of work Schaad Companies wants to be associated with, work of the highest quality that brings sustained creative value to our community.

Jim and Natalie Haslam

You don't have to walk far around the UT Knoxville campus to see the impact that Jim and Natalie Haslam have on the university. The College of Business, the music building, athletic facilities and the Haslam scholars program all are testament to their devotion to the university. Over the decades since their graduations from UT, both have served the university in numerous capacities—including Jim Haslam's 24 years as a UT trustee—and both have led several fundraising campaigns.

THE UNIVERSITY OF

KNOXVILLE

COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES

The College of Arts and Sciences is UT's flagship college and the largest, most comprehensive, and most diverse of UT's eleven colleges. As such, our faculty are a central driver of the university's academic accomplishments and the greatest contributor to all aspects of the university's missions of instruction, research, and service to society. The college's twenty-one academic departments and schools, eight centers and institutes, and thirteen interdisciplinary programs span the disciplines of the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, and the visual and performing arts. The college is also home to the Language and World Business Program and the College Scholars Program. There are 640 fulltime-equivalent (FTE) instructional faculty in the college which includes 420 research-active tenure-track faculty and 219 non-tenure track faculty.

2018/2019 Corporate, Foundation & Grant Profiles

The Alliance was created in 1998 to raise awareness of the integral role women play in philanthropy at the University of Tennessee. Today the group has more than 4,250 members nationwide and is recognized as one of the UT System's most active and well-respected volunteer groups. In fact, universities across the nation have modeled their women's philanthropy groups after the Alliance, fostering a sense of unity and pride among their female donors.

Knoxville's roots run deep and strong. The city has served as the hub of the region since its founding in 1791. The best of its Appalachian heritage remains today — a strong work ethic, a family-centered community, and an intense respect for the natural beauty that envelops the region. The metropolitan Knoxville area was ranked the "best place to live in the United States and Canada" among cities with a population of fewer than 1 million. The ranking came from the Millennium edition of Places Rated Almanac. The results confirmed what most in this area have known for a long time - Knoxville is one of the best cities in the country!

Knox County Tourism Consortium

The Clarence Brown Theatre is a proud member of the Arts & Culture Alliance's Knox County Tourism Consortium, joining with 25 other art and heritage non-profits to attract and entertain more than 1.3 million people annually from countries as distant and diverse as Japan, New Zealand, the Russian Federation, Liberia, the Netherlands, and across South America. With support from the Hotel Motel Tax Fund, the Consortium contracts with Knox County to present more than 4,200 visitor-focused events and activities throughout the year.

Mildred Haines and William Elijah Morris Lecture Endowment Fund

The Mildred Haines and William Elijah Morris Lecture Endowment supports campus visits of lecturers and scholars in all disciplines in the College of Arts and Sciences. The dean of the college solicits proposals from departments and academic programs for the use of the funds, appoints an advisory committee to review and make recommendations regarding the proposals, and makes awards to the successful proposals. The advisory committee has a representative from the humanities, the social sciences, the natural sciences and the arts faculties of the college. The committee selects a chairperson from among its members. Committee members serve two-year terms and may be reappointed at the discretion of the dean.

When the Tennessee Arts Commission was created in 1967, it was given a special mandate by the General Assembly to stimulate and encourage the presentation of performing, visual and literary arts throughout the state and to encourage public interest in the cultural heritage of Tennessee. Through a variety of programs, the Commission has encouraged excellence in artistic expression through the state's artists and arts organizations. That commitment has continued to expand through the years to ensure that the citizens of Tennessee have access to, and the opportunity to participate in the arts. These activities give Tennessee citizens a better quality of life, provide our children with a more complete education and attract tourists to our state.
